PTSD

POST TRAUMATIC STRESS DISORDER

- With the end of the war activities on the territory of the former Yugoslavia, persons suffering from PTSD began to emerge as criminal offenders
- With introduction of the probation service, these persons integrate in penalty and legal sanctions executed in the community
- we are talking about persons who were exposed directly to war combat, soldiers who experienced the first symptoms during the war or immediately after the war
- To some, symptoms worsening with time and leading them to conflicts with law and order, rejection of social code of conduct and intolerance
- IMPORTANT: NOT ALL PERSONS WITH PTSD COMMIT CRIMES!

PTSD

POST TRAUMATIC STRESS DISORDER

- PTSD individuals enter the system as offenders, suspected of various criminal acts, with predominant criminal acts of:
 - violence,
 - violent behavior in the family
 - threats,
 - robbery,
 - murders,
 - as well as offences provoked by alcohol and drug abuse which manifest themselves as thefts or even burglary.

PTSD

POST TRAUMATIC STRESS DISORDER

- PTSD is often accompanied with physical disorders such as
 - depression
 - anxiety
 - alcohol abuse
 - medication abuse
 - narcotics abuse
- In direct connection with the exposure to the combat, mutilation and imprisonment in camps are the permanent physical disability or chronic illnesses which are recognized later and are caused by traumatic experiences
- In great majority of cases such history leads to permanent disruption of family ties and relationships which often end up in violence.

PTSD

POST TRAUMATIC STRESS DISORDER

- Probation officers strive to encourage the offenders to seek professional and competent help provided by the society.
- We interact with:
 1. health care institutions
 2. hospitals
 3. relevant medical staff
 4. social welfare institutions
 5. Detention system authorities
- Within the Prison Service in the Republic of Croatia special program for prisoners suffering from PTSD is developed!

PTSD

POST TRAUMATIC STRESS DISORDER

- On basis of gathered information probation officers elaborate an individual approach program for each sufferer with health risk and treatment, which is approved and signed by the person
- The primary goal of our program is alleviation of the symptoms of the disease and improvement of psychosocial functionality of the sufferer who come with already defined medical diagnosis
- We encourage them to continue their treatment with physicians they consulted before joining the probation program and regularly send to the Court the report on progress and adherence to the program

PTSD

POST TRAUMATIC STRESS DISORDER

- probation officers, being aware of the complexity and specific characteristics of the subject, interact with other participants in the system by direct exchange of experience in each case separately and individually, constantly endeavour to improve their knowledge and skills required for work with offenders suffering from PTSD

CHALLENGES

- Offenders do not have special obligation/security measure to take treatment
- Mental health problem is not related to crime
